CUSTIS LEE DIES AT AGE OF EIGHTY

ties in Richmond and by other causes from rendering regular service.

In the spring of 1864, however, President Davis sent a messenger to General Lee, to say that if he would order his son Custis to a certain important command, he would make him major-general, or, if necessary, lieutenant-general, at the same time expressing the highest opinion of his ability as a soldier. General Robert E. Lee's reply was characteristic. He said to the distinguished general who bore Mr. Davis's message: "I am very much obliged to the President for his high opinion of me, but I am not a soldier. I am a man of the field—against his will and my own, the President has kept him on his staff—and I will not take an untitled man and promote him over my veteran officers, especially when that man is my own son. The President can do what he pleases, but I will not be a party to any such transaction."

While his brother, Brigadier-General W. H. F. Lee, was a prisoner at Fort Lafayette as a hostage for two Federal officers (prisoners) who had been selected by lot to suffer for two Confederate officers in Federal hands, General Custis Lee nobly offered to exchange places with him, as his brother was married and he was not. When General Early was advancing on Washington in the summer of 1862, the Confederates had a secret plan to fit out an expedition from Wilmington, N. C., which should enter Chesapeake Bay, release and arm the large number of prisoners at that point, and with these reinforce General Early. It was a delicate and important movement, requiring ability and tact in those who led it, and the President did not see why the right of appeal should not be granted in party administration affairs as well as in other matters of civil and governmental character.

The recommendations of any committee, county, city, town, district or State ought to count for their exact worth with the appointive power and no more. And I am inclined to the belief that the next President of the United States will emphasize that theory in a very decisive manner. It is entirely possible that Mr. Wilson, when he assumes the duties of office, will have transported with him to the White House a few ideas which he exhibited more or less freely in New Jersey, and that he will not be disposed to look upon the judgment and recommendations of various district and State organizations as all-powerful and unconditionally conclusive. Certainly he has reason, in view of past experiences, to investigate with some degree of care, projections of that kind from Virginia.

"I need hardly say that I would be pleased to have an endorsement from your committee for the position here, in referred to, because I believe it is a great honor, but I could neither ask nor accept an endorsement of your hands that would deprive any other candidate from other prosecution of his claims nor prevent him, if he so desired, from carrying his case to the court of last resort."

Tulane University, of Louisiana, conferred on General Custis Lee the degree of LL. D., and an honorary degree was also given him by one of the English scientific associations. In politics General Lee was a Democrat in church, preference, an Episcopalian. Modest and retiring, to a fault, but genial and pleasant in the circle in which he moved, General Custis Lee has many of the characteristics of his great father, and is honored, respected and loved by those who know him. DECISION NO BAR TO CANDIDATES

Miller Opposes Idea of Committee's Recommendation as Being Final.

IN RACE FOR COLLECTORSHIP

Would Appreciate Indorsement, but Will Not Promise to Retire if Not Given.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

Bristol, Va., February 18.—Howard C. Miller, of Norton, editor of the Wise Virginian, having entered the contest for the collectorship of internal revenue for the Sixth Collecting District, is the first man to openly oppose the idea of granting the District Committee the privilege of making its decision with reference to the availability of candidates final. He takes the view that the committee has a perfect right to recommend, but that its indorsement should not act as a bar to the future candidacy of any man for any of the positions to be filled. Mr. Miller, who improved here from Norton to-day, has been honored with a position on the Inaugural Reception Committee as a representative of Virginia. This afternoon he made public an open letter to Secretary Wysox, of the Democratic Committee of the Ninth District. Among other things he says:

"I recognize the right and propriety of the Democratic Committee, as a regular organized political unit, to make such indorsements as it may deem fit and proper, but I dissent most emphatically from the position that the action of the committee should, or in justice ought to be, regarded as final by all candidates concerned. It seems to me that your committee lacks confidence in its own indorsement when it demands as the one stipulation that every candidate not receiving its approval shall retire from the race. "Since the Ninth District Committee has nothing to bestow, and since its legitimate functions are purely advisory and supplementary, I fail to see on what grounds the committee bases the assumption that it can practically put one man in office and deny the same office to another man, and even his right to apply for it. That attitude does not appeal to me as embodying either the substance or form of Democratic precept, and I for one refuse to accept it as such. It is difficult to see why the right of appeal should not be granted in party administration affairs as well as in other matters of civil and governmental character. The recommendations of any committee, county, city, town, district or State ought to count for their exact worth with the appointive power and no more. And I am inclined to the belief that the next President of the United States will emphasize that theory in a very decisive manner. It is entirely possible that Mr. Wilson, when he assumes the duties of office, will have transported with him to the White House a few ideas which he exhibited more or less freely in New Jersey, and that he will not be disposed to look upon the judgment and recommendations of various district and State organizations as all-powerful and unconditionally conclusive. Certainly he has reason, in view of past experiences, to investigate with some degree of care, projections of that kind from Virginia."

Miller's indorsement, however, is not a bar to his candidacy, and he will not promise to retire if not given.

SURVEY OF HENRICO COUNTY.

Being Made By Experts From Bureau of Soils.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) Washington, D. C., February 18.—W. J. Latimer and W. M. Beck, the experts from the Bureau of Soils, United States Department of Agriculture, who are engaged in a soil survey of Henrico County, are making good progress and expect to have the survey finished by the middle of April.

The work was suspended temporarily in December, owing to the severe winter weather, but was resumed several weeks ago at the direction of Professor Milton Whitney, chief of the Bureau of Soils, with orders to push the work to rapid completion.

Professor Whitney expects to visit Richmond sometime in March, to make an address on soils, particularly those in the State and in the counties contiguous to Richmond.

No More Pool in Y. M. C. A.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) Winston-Salem, N. C., February 18.—Because of the strong sentiment among many Christian people of the community against pool playing at the Young Men's Christian Association, the ministers of the city being among those opposed to it, the board of managers of the Y. M. C. A. has decided that the tables should be abolished on March 1.

Jenious of New Board.

The committee adjourned to meet on Friday night at 8 o'clock for a conference with the Administrative Board, notwithstanding the objection of several members, who were disposed to stand on their rights and leave the Administrative Board to get along as best it can. Mr. Ratcliffe saw nothing that could come from such a conference. Messrs. Powers and Melton were opposed to "meeting with the Administrative Board," they were willing to extend to the board the courtesy of a hearing, if the members had anything to present. The question of whether the Friday night "conference" should be held in the office of the Administrative Board or in the meeting room of the committee was debated at length, a compromise being reached when the committee agreed to meet the Administrative Board on neutral

FAVOR NEW LIGHTS FOR MAIN STREET

Council Committee Reverses Administrative Board, and Wants $26,192.50.

TO MAKE JAILBIRDS WORK

Vonderlehr Would Set Able-Bodied Prisoners to Walling in Shockoe Creek.

Ornamental lighting of the entire downtown business section at a cost for installation of $26,192.50, and for maintenance of $5,438 per annum, was recommended by the Council Committee on Public Buildings, Properties and Utilities last night, notwithstanding the fact that the Administrative Board has already rejected a similar resolution, on the ground that the city needs all of its revenue for street improvements and essentials this year, and cannot wisely divert its funds to frills.

In compliance with instructions of the committee at a previous meeting, Superintendent E. W. Trafford, of the City Electric Plant, submitted an estimate for ornamental lighting of the following streets: Grace Street from Fifth to Ninth, Franklin from Fifth to Ninth, Main from Fifth to
